

1133a Tabula lapidea alta ped. 2 dig. 10, lata ped. 2 dig. 3, rep. a. 1865 on a small farm called Hutchisonhill sita at the Peel Glen prope Castlehill (East Kilpatrick). Emit Professor Mc Chesney, consul Americanus in Newcastle, misitque in patriam suam Chicago urbem ad museum ibi condendum, Glasgoviensibus frustra deprecantibus. In Chicago fortasse periit incendio nupero. Ectypum gypseum, quod Bruce faciendum curavit, servat societas archaeologica Glasgoviensis. Litterae in tabella ansata scriptae sunt.

Ioh. Buchanan descripsit et edidit scriptione peculiari (recent discovery of a Roman inscription near Glasgow; read at a meeting of the Glasgow Archaeological Society on 16th December, 1867 8. cum postilla 23. November 1869); misit etiam Dickson a se descriptam. Est gemella praecedentis, ut recte observavit Bruce.

XI. DUNTOCHER,
STATIO PER LINEAM VALLI NONA?

Ab vico hodierno Duntocher versus meridiem in colle eminenti castrorum vestigia certa observata sunt (Horsley p. 164; Roy p. 158; Stuart p. 295 s.); pontis etiam Romani, ut creditur, ibi supersunt rudera (Roy tab. 37. Tituli ibi aut in vicinia reperti (quibus additur originis non satis certae unus, n. 1139) soliti vallenses tantum sunt (n. 1135—1138), uno excepto (n. 1134), sed tamen quin ibi statio fuerit non videtur dubitari posse. Unde Cibrae nomen ei stationi poterit tribui aliqua cum probabilitate.

1134 Duntocher; ara rep. a. 1829 by Archibald Bulloch, son of the old miller of Duntocher, while cutting drains in a marshy portion of the farm of Easter Duntiglennan, about 1/2 mile north of the line of the wall, and in the vicinity of the fort. Servabatur a. 1843 on the top of the miller's cottage; deinde Glasgoviae apud Ioh. Buchanan; nunc ibidem in museo Hunteriano DICKS.

1135 Rep. a. 1812 on the farm of Broadfield, about 1/2 mile south-east from Duntocher station IRV. STUART. In museo Hunteriano; lapis longus dig. 49 1/2, altus 30.
