Neutrius (nisi tres fuerunt) tituli lectio satis certa est; certe in n. 1150 vix Tetricum iuniorem licebit agnoscere, quem constat in nummis Pium Esuvium dici, Poesuvii vel Pesuvii nomine barbaro ita ad Romana nomina accommodato (cf. de Witte empereurs des Gaules Paris. 1868 4. p. 181 tab. 45, 4).

Southfleet, Kent. A Roman milestone is lying on its side, on the remains of Watlingstreet, northward from Betsham, at the western corner of it, where the road from Gravesend joins the Shinglewell-road, at Wingfield Bank.

LXIX. VIAE BRITANNIAE ORIENTALIS.

Prope Londinium (in Middlesex; cf. p. 358 ss.) item in Bedfordshire (Goughs Camden 2 p. 52 ss.; H. Brandreth Archaeologia 27, 1838 p. 96 ss.) miliarii reperti non sunt, quam viarum vestigia observata sunt a multis (locis supra indicatis). In Cambridgeshire tantum (Goughs Camden 2 p. 219 ss. 234) et in vicino comitatu Huntingdon (Goughs Camden 2 p. 257) effossi sunt miliarii n. 1153. 1154. 1155. 1156, in Worcestershire (Goughs Camden 2 p. 477 ss.; Allies antiquities of Worcestershire p. 237. 329 ss.) n. 1157. Atque illi quidem omnes (n. 1153—1156) pertinuisse possunt ad viam Londinio Lindum (itin. 476, 7—477, 9 et p. 478, 10—479, 9), hoc (n. 1157) fortasse ad viae eius, quae fuit a vallo Hadriani ad portum Rutupiarum (itin. 466, 5—472, 6), particulam aliquam accuratius nondum notam.

1153 Columna miliaria litteris rudibus. Ubi reperta sit ignoratur; servabatur olim in Conington, nunc extat Cantabrigiae in collegio Trinitatis.
